pma young crew Workshop 2018: International Project Management

Martin Giesswein

Pitch Your Project: Present and promote your project like a startup

Including the international project management case: Upcoming startup campus Talent Garden Vienna (<http://impact.talentgarden.org>)

Martin Giesswein sees his mission in strengthening the digital literacy of individuals, companies and institutions in Austria. In this role, he works as a start-up coach at www.innovation2company.wien, as co-founder of the Talent Garden project for Vienna, as co-initiator of DigitalCity.Wien and as Digital Academic at universities and corporate academies. In 2014 he managed the exit of immobilien.NET to the Scout24 group as CEO. Previously, he was breathing 10 years of corporate air in ICT, including roles as General Manager and Marketing Director CEE e.g. with Nokia. www.giesswein.org

Oya Günay

How coaching can help you achieve effective communication

The very first step in achieving effective communication with others requires the understanding and management of one's own emotions. Rather than putting our focus on the other party and jumping into use of methods and tools, one should start working in that area. Coaching works a lot since it is one of the most effective ways that can help people know themselves better and achieve better.

Oya Günay is an Executive Coach and Strategy Partner, working with leaders and senior corporate executives across Europe. She has more than 20 years of international business experience in financial services, including senior investment banking operations, CFO and Project Management roles.

She works with several multinational companies across Europe and is a business partner of StangerCarlson Leadership and Talent Company in New York, USA, AIIR Consulting, USA, Coach in a Box, UK and WU Executive Academy in Vienna, Austria. She teaches at the seminar programs organized by the Istanbul Technical University in Istanbul, Turkey.

Christian Steinreiber

Projects going hybrid

Christian is a Lecturer and Coordinator of Project Management courses within the 2 study programs at the UAS BFI Vienna – BA Project Management & IT and MA Project Management and Organisation. He also has 15 years of expertise in project management, within academic, R&D, infrastructure, international development and non profit sectors in Europe, Africa and Asia.

pma young crew Workshop 2018: International Project Management

Thomas Zeiler

Enhancement of Road Safety in Ghana

The workshop will address the collaboration between public authorities and companies in Austria and Ghana as well as impact of distance, logistics and climate conditions on project management.

Thomas Zeiler (zSPM) has several years of experience in project management on a national and international level.

His current position is project director at Fleck Elektroinstallationen GmbH. He holds a degree in engineering from the Technical University of Graz and was awarded project manager of the year 2017 by PMA.

Christoph Schmiedinger

Agile Flavoured Collaboration Hacks for Distributed Teams

Christoph Schmiedinger has more than nine years of experience in software and product development and more than five years of them in agile methods like Scrum. Christoph had his first contact with Scrum at a vendor for safety-critical communication systems at the time when his team should go agile. In parallel to his product owner role he supported his ScrumMaster, his team and the management in order to achieve the transition to agile. Since almost four years Christoph Schmiedinger has been working for an agile consulting firm. His focus are agile transformations, scaled projects and banks.
